THE SUNDAY TIMES

CHIEF EXECUTIVE'S REPORT

We are proud to partner with The Sunday Times on this year's Giving List, as we have since 2015, to highlight the good which comes from wealth creation. Through extraordinary times in the last year, we have seen great acts of generosity, compassion and determination to affect change from many donors who work with CAF to deliver on their giving objectives.

The Giving List highlights the rise in environmental donations, where despite a global pandemic, the climate crisis has captured the attention of so many. The new generation of younger philanthropists are using their platforms to exert influence, and amplify the impact of significant sums of money responding to climate change.

Next generation givers are driving real change in the sector. We are seeing more and more use of social media and social movements to drive the agenda towards positive social progress with younger donors seeking to get actively involved in producing tangible impact. This includes younger change-makers of colour using their positions and success to promote change, as illustrated by some of the famous names in this year's Giving List.

About the Charities Aid Foundation

At the Charities Aid Foundation, we connect donors with the causes that matter to them; when and where it matters most.

We work with private individuals, companies and over 100,000 charities worldwide. For nearly 100 years donors have turned to CAF in the knowledge that our experience, independence, and reach will help them to realise ever greater impact through their giving.
